Health care workers' pay boost on the block

By ANA B. IBARRA

Update: California lawmakers on Monday announced they are pursuing legislation to postpone the health worker minimum wage law by one month to July 1.

alifornia promised a higher minimum wage for health care workers. Will Newsom delay it? Gov. Gavin Newsom is cutting it close. He signed a law last fall that phases in a $25 minimum wage for California's lowest-paid health care workers beginning June 1. Then, he said he wanted to delay it because of its potential to exacerbate the severe state budget shortfall. Health Care Workers, see page 2

Ballot measure's homeless quick fix falls short

By MARISA KENDALL and YUE STELLA YU

Homelessness gets top billing in a measure likely to make it onto your November ballot. Whether the measure has anything to do with homelessness is debatable.

The initiative proponents are calling the "Homelessness, Drug Addiction, and Theft Reduction Act" would increase penalties for some drug and theft crimes, by rolling back Proposition 47 — the criminal justice changes California voters passed a decade ago. It also would force some people arrested three or more times for drug crimes into treatment.

But where does homelessness factor into this tough-oncrime measure? The initiative includes no money for housing, shelter or treatment beds — leading some experts to question how it would help get California's more than 181,000 unhoused residents off the street in a state where recent research shows loss of income is the leading cause of homelessness. Nor does the measure allocate or create new funding sources to pay cities or counties to enforce it.

For Yolo County District Attorney Jeff Reisig, who helped author the proposed ballot measure, the philosophy is simple: The measure would slash the homeless population by pushing those struggling with drug addiction into treatment.

"The big part of this, which is the key to the program, is it's going to be compelled," Reisig said. "People are going to have to go through the program or accept the consequences."

But according to Elliott Currie, a professor of criminology, law and society at the University of California Irvine, the measure is based on a false assumption.

"The theory is that people are homeless because we've been too lenient with drug addiction," Currie said. "I think I can safely say that I don't see one shred of serious evidence that that's what's going on."

Did Prop. 47 increase homelessness in California?

The proposed ballot measure targets Prop. 47, which, when passed by voters in 2014, reduced certain theft and drug crimes from felonies to misdemeanors. In some circles, Prop. 47 now is being blamed for a perceived increase in crime – ■ Ouick Fix Fails, see page 3

Politics, not data, driving state budget decisions

By SAMEEA KAMAL

Frustration came through loud and clear as legislators hurled question after question at the head of the state's homelessness interagency council: Why, after years of planning and billions of dollars invested, is there so little to show for the effort?

"You come into a budget committee and there's no numbers," Assemblymember Phil Ting, a San Francisco Democrat, said at the May 6 Assembly committee hearing. "Why is it taking so long?"

Assemblymember Vince Fong, a Bakersfield Republican, took issue with the council saying it needed more money to compile the data. And Chris Ward, a Democrat from San Diego, said he'd been asking the same questions since 2022: "The fact that we're still now, three years later here as a state is incredibly frustrating because that guides our decision making here as a budget."

But even without a full picture of how well the homelessness spending is working, Gov. Gavin Newsom is proposing cuts to cover the state's budget deficit.

That's just one example of how the state budget gets put together, often without fully knowing if a program is paying off. Revenue dictates decisions, and voter-passed initiatives direct some spending. After that, legislators use any data that's available, but they also negotiate with other officials and listen to their constituents.

They're also lobbied by advocates and interest groups. (More than 650 organizations spent money lobbying on the budget, as well as other issues.)

For the 2024-25 budget now before the Legislature, Newsom released a revised plan earlier this month that calls for dipping into reserves, canceling some new spending and cutting existing programs to cover a remaining shortfall of $27.6 billion. The independent Legislative Analyst's Office, which assesses the budget picture through different calculations, cites the deficit as $55 billion, though it generally agrees with Newsom's overall view of the state's finances.

But two weeks before the deadline for employers to start paying more to their employees, many health workers are still waiting to hear whether they will in fact see a raise.

Some health workers remain hopeful. Others have already been notified by their employers of their upcoming raise or have already started to see increased pay.

When Newsom presented his latest budget proposal last week, the governor said negotiations around potential changes to the health worker minimum wage law, Senate Bill 525, are still taking place. He promised a deal between his administration, the Legislature and proponents of the law would be hashed out in the upcoming weeks.

"This budget will not be signed without that deal that we committed to being addressed," Newsom said. He usually signs a budget for the next fiscal year in late June.

Meanwhile the union that advocated for the health care pay increase has launched an advertising campaign that aims to hold Newsom to the law he signed.

One ad by Service Employees International Union-United Healthcare Workers West on the social media site X shows a dialysis worker named Alice and it reads, "The dialysis care Alice provides is lifesaving. Yet, with caregivers at her facility starting out at only $18/hr, it's no wonder there's a short staffing crisis.

A $25/hr minimum wage for healthcare workers will help ensure patients get the care they need."

Nathan Selzer, communications director for SEIU-UHW, said his union posted the messages because, "Our workers were concerned and remain concerned. What we saw in conversations earlier this year was folks really focusing only on money and only on dollars and cents, and not on what those dollars and cents are used for."

SEIU-UHW is an affiliate of SEIU California, which sponsored the law.

"We made a decision that we've got to make sure we're reminding people why this was made into law to begin with," he said.

Selzer said he is not directly involved in conversations with the governor's office and legislators, but that confusion among many workers rings true. "We've heard June 1, we've heard July 1. It remains to be seen what actually happens here," he said.

Deadline to postpone minimum wage hike

What exactly is holding up the negotiations is unclear. Lawmakers and Newsom would have to pass and sign legislation that would push back the start date within two weeks to delay it effectively.

Newsom said he wanted to postpone the wage increase when he released his initial budget proposal in January. He asked the Legislature for an annual "trigger" that would tie the minimum wage increases to the state's budget outlook. His administration projects the state is facing a $27.6 billion deficit in 2024-25.

The state has estimated the minimum wage increase could cost the state around $4 billion a year. That's because the state would have to pay for the wage increases for its own employees at state health facilities and because the state may be forced to increase what it reimburses facilities for services provided to patients on Medi-Cal.

Backers of the measure, which is likely to qualify for the ballot after it recently submitted more than 900,000 signatures (about 547,000 valid ones are required), also blame Prop. 47 for California's dire homelessness crisis.

In the decade that Prop. 47 has been in effect, homelessness in California has grown by more than half — and backers of the proposed ballot measure say the two are "directly connected." They argue by watering down the legal consequences for drug use, Prop. 47 removed the incentives for homeless Californians to participate in mental health and drug treatment, and as a result, fewer are. Because of that, they argue, more people are living on the streets.

"One of the primary root causes of homelessness is serious addiction, which is debilitating and results in people not being able to function or even hold a job," Reisig said in an interview with CalMatters.

It's true that participation in drug courts dropped throughout the state in the wake of Prop. 47. In San Diego County, for example, more than 650 people went through drug court in the year before Prop. 47 passed. By 2021, it was down to just 255.

As evidence Prop. 47 is tied to homelessness, backers of the measure point to states with stronger drug laws and smaller homeless populations. Illinois, for example, has a homeless rate about five times less than California's.

But there are a lot of other factors — especially housing costs — contributing to the state's homelessness crisis. Fair market rent for a two-bedroom in Chicago is just $1,714 – nearly half the going rate in San Francisco. The San Francisco area rate increased 72% since Prop. 47 passed, hitting $3,359 this year, according to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

For some experts who study crime and homelessness, the ballot measure is baffling.

"I'm not aware of any data that shows a connection between Prop. 47 and homelessness," said Charis Kubrin, a professor of criminology at UC Irvine. "So it's a bit of a puzzle to me why they're together like that."

Blaming the state's spike in homelessness on Prop. 47 is "preposterous," said Sharon Rapport, director of California state policy for the Corporation for Supportive Housing. "All of the changes that the (ballot measure) is proposing have nothing, nothing whatsoever, to do with homelessness."

The organization hasn't even taken an official position on the measure, because, Rapport said, it's not related to homelessness.

The number one reason Californians end up homeless is a loss of income — not drug use, according to a UC San Francisco study that provides the most comprehensive look yet at the state's homelessness crisis. And in the six months before becoming homeless, the people surveyed were making a median income of just $960 a month.

That doesn't mean drug use has nothing to do with homelessness. Nearly a third of people surveyed reported using methamphetamines three times a week, while 11% used non-prescribed opioids.

Other studies have had varying results: a 2022 Stanford Institute for Economic Policy Research study, which cited research from multiple surveys across several states, showed 43% to 88% of the homeless population struggled with drug abuse.

If you visited a Planned Parenthood in the continental United States in the past few years then the company Near Intelligence, a data broker, probably knew it — and may have sold that information to anti-abortion activists. If you attended certain houses of worship or patronized particular pharmacies, the data broker known as Outlogic allegedly sold that information.

Near Intelligence filed for bankruptcy in December. Outlogic agreed to a settlement with the Federal Trade Commision to stop selling user location data, while insisting regulators had found "no misuse of any data." Both were among nearly 90 companies on the latest version of the California data broker registry that self-reported selling data about where people are or have been.

For the first time this year California requires data brokers — companies that knowingly collect and sell consumer's data to third parties — to report if they collect location data.

Do data brokers somewhere have data about you? Almost certainly. Most everywhere you go on your digital journey will collect traces of information about you. If you've been on the internet in the past few years, you've probably seen a bunch of notices asking if it's okay for the website you're on to collect your "cookies" — information that allows the website to remember you, essentially. Some apps on your phone may track your location. It's hard to say precisely what information about vou is where because there are so many variables your privacy settings, the sites vou visit, what you buy and from whom, etc. - but data brokers are in the business of finding, collecting, and selling that data to other businesses.

Brokers sell your web activity and other personal information to companies that may target advertising to you or make important decisions about your life, such as whether you get an apartment, whether your activity is labeled fraudulent, or how you're treated by insurance companies.

The market is largely unregulated. Selling data about people is the cornerstone of the modern internet economy, powering targeted advertising based on insights gleaned.

The remainder of the purchase price must be delivered within 30 days of the sale or at such other time as the Secretary may determine for good cause shown, time being of the essence. There is no right of redemption, or right of possession based upon a right of redemption, in the mortgagor or others subsequent to a foreclosure completed pursuant to the Act. Therefore, the Foreclosure Commissioner will issue a Deed to the purchaser(s) upon receipt of the entire purchase price in accordance with the terms of the sale as provided herein. HUD does not guarantee that the property will be vacant. The scheduled foreclosure sale shall be cancelled or adjourned if it is established, by documented written application of the mortgagor to the Foreclosure Commissioner not less than 3 days before the date of sale, or otherwise, that the default or defaults upon which the foreclosure is based did not exist at the time of service of this notice of default and foreclosure sale or all amounts due under the mortgage agreement are tendered to the Foreclosure Commissioner, in the form of a certified or cashier's check payable to the Secretary of HUD, before public auction of the property is completed. Notice to Potential Bidders If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a Trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a Trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, prior-

Notice to Property Owner The sale date shown on this Notice of Sale may be postponed one or more times by the Mortgagee, Beneficiary, Trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924a of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about Trustee Sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call In Source Logic at 702-659-7766 for information regarding the Trustee's Sale or visit the Internet Website address listed below for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case, CA08000141-23-1. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Website. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. Notice of Availability of a Draft Environmental Impact Report for the Cordova Complex and Quarry at Pawnee Warehouse Project. Notice is hereby given that on May 24, 2024 the Town of Apple Valley (Town), acting as the Lead Agency, is releasing for public review and comment a Draft Environmental Impact Report (EIR) that evaluates potential environmental effects associated with the proposed Cordova Complex and Quarry at Pawnee Warehouse Project (Project). The approximately 163-acre Project site is located in the northern part of the Town, which is within the Victor Valley region of San Bernardino County and includes two noncontiguous sites: the Cordova Complex site and the Quarry at Pawnee site (see Figure 1) The approximately 87-acre Cordova Complex site is bounded by Cordova Road to the north Navaio Road to the east. Doberman Street and undeveloped land to the south and Dachshund Avenue to the west. The approximately 76-acre Quarry at Pawnee site is bounded by Quarry Road to the north, Flint Road to the east, Cordova Road to the south and an unnamed road to the west. The project site is located within the Town's adopted North Apple Valley Industrial Specific Plan (NAVISP). Regional access to the project site is provided via Interstate 15, located approximately 2.5 miles west of the Project site. The Project site consists of Assessor's Parcel Numbers (APN's) 0463-213-05, 06, 07, 08, 09, 16, 33, 34, 35, 36 and 0463-214-06, 07, 08 and 09.

The Draft EIR addresses the potential physical environmental effects of construction and operation of two new warehouse buildings totaling approximately 3,022,294 square feet (sf) (see Figure 2). The Project would operate as high-pile storage warehouses for the storage and distribution of manufactured goods/ materials with ancillary office uses. The Cordova Complex warehouse building would be 1,559,952 sf and would include a total of 266 loading dock doors, with 133 loading dock doors along the northern warehouse facade and 133 loading dock doors along the southern façade. The Quarry at Pawnee warehouse building would be slightly smaller at 1,462,342 sf and would 2 include a total of 235 loading dock doors with 118 loading dock doors along the eastern warehouse façade with an additional 117 loading dock doors along the western façade. The Project would involve associated onsite improvements, including truck and vehicle parking, onsite stormwater detention basins, and landscaped areas. The Project would also include off-site roadway improvements, including widening and paving of roadways used to access the Project site, as well as installation and/or upsizing of water and sewer lines in the immediate vicinity of the Project site. The warehouses would be built as tilt-up (Type IIIB) structures with concrete walls. No refrigeration would be included for cold storage.

The Project would result in no impact or a less-than-significant impact for the following environmental topics: aesthetics; agriculture and forestry resources; energy; geology and soils; hazards and hazardous materials; hydrology and water quality; land use and planning; mineral resources; population and housing; public services and recreation; transportation; utilities and service systems: and wildfire. With the incorporation of mitigation measures identified in the Draft EIR, potentially significant impacts would be reduced to less than significant for the following environmental topics: biological resources: and cultural. tribal cultural, and paleontological resources. The Project would have significant and unavoidable impacts, even with mitigation measures incorporated, for the following environmental topics: air quality; greenhouse gas emissions; and noise. The CEQA Guidelines also require this Notice to indicate whether or not the Project site is included on any of the lists of sites enumerated under Section 65962.5 of the Government Code (the Cortese List). The Project site is not included on the Cortese List.

The Town is publishing the Draft EIR and Notice of Availability for public review and comment for a 45-day period, from May 24, 2024 through July 8, 2024, pursuant to California Code of Regulations, Title 14, Sections 15087 and 15105. Comments must be received in writing by 5:00 p.m. on July 8, 2024, which marks the end of the 45-day public review period. The Draft EIR and NOA are available online at: https://www.applevallev.org/services/planningdivision/ environmental The Draft FIR is also available for review at Apple Valley Town Hall, Planning Dept., 14955 Dale Evans Parkway, Apple Valley, CA 92307, Monday through Thursday from 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., Friday from 8:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. (closed on alternate Fridays) and at the San Bernardino County Library, 14901 Dale Evans Parkway, Apple Valley CA 92307. My Only Exercise Is Jumping to Conclusions

Over the past few weeks (or was it months?) I've been recovering from some health issues. They were not that serious, just annoying. I spent one day in the hospital and the rest of the time in bed, which is not the kind of vacation I want.

During all that time, I've not had much time to exercise. I asked about it when I was at the Doctor's for my last examination. I said, "Doctor, what should I do about exercising? I haven't been able to do much of that during my sickness."

Looking at me rather grimly, he said, "If I were you I would exercise daily."

Smiling at the doctor, I said, "Thank You, I appreciate that."

The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage drove me to the Doctor's appointment and was now driving me back to the house.

While driving, she looked at me and said, "Well, do you think you're going to start exercising now? What are you going to do first?"

I just looked at her and laughed.

"What are you laughing about?" She said.

"Did you hear what the doctor said? He said he would exercise daily for me."

Looking at me with her eyes rolling in her head, she said, "This is why I have to come with you when you go to the doctors. You never hear what the doctor says. That is not what he said."

"You heard it as well as I did," I said, "he said, 'If I were you, I would exercise daily."

Still rolling her eyes, she said, "That is not what I heard him say."

I was still chuckling, and then she said, "I think you have some loose marbles rolling around in your head."

Smiling at her, I said, "Thank you, my dear, for recognizing that I have some activity in my head."

I glanced in her direction and noticed she wasn't laughing at all, but her eyes were still rolling.

I must say that jumping to conclusions is a great way to exercise. And it solves a lot of problems.

I had one exercise project that I wanted to do. I wanted to run to the store and get an Apple Fritter and run back. Now the problem with that is, my energy is not up to the place where I can run that far. And, sneaking out of the house at this time would not work for me at all.

I have been jumping to conclusions for as long as I can remember. That is because I don't let people say everything on their mind. If I think I know what they're saying, I jump immediately to what turns out to be the wrong conclusion.

When I was a young kid at home, my father would often say to me, "Son, do you want a spanking?"

At the time, I never knew if it was a rhetorical question or if he was giving me a choice. That is the only time I can remember that I didn't jump to some conclusion.

If I look at my life, I can blame a lot of my problems on my habit of jumping to conclusions. If only I would just let people say everything on their mind and wait until they're done to make some kind of a decision.

I remember many years ago when I met the young lady who is now The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. We were riding along in a van with some of the other young people at the Bible school we were going to.

Just before we got back to the dormitory, she said to me quietly, "Wouldn't it be nice to be married?"

I did not know what she was talking about because I was too naïve then, so I jumped to the conclusion and said, "That would be wonderful." I was the last in the Bible school to know I had become engaged. I jumped to a conclusion I had no understanding about.

Under the circumstances, that was probably the best conclusion I ever reached. It just took me a long time to understand what it meant.

I jump to conclusions because I think I know what that person is talking about. I wouldn't get into so much trouble if I weren't so smart.

A dumb person would usually say, "What do you mean?" And then wait for the explanation.

A smart person would think he knows what that person is talking about and jumps to conclusions.

I come from Pennsylvania, and the Pennsylvania Dutch have a saying that goes like this: "Throw Papa down the stairs..." There's a pause, and after the pause, they finish it by saying, "His hat."

If you don't listen to the whole sentence, you're liable to throw Papa down the stairs. But if you listen to the entire sentence, you will throw his hat down the stairs.

There are times when I don't listen to the entire sentence. In my Bible reading, I discovered a verse dealing with this.

Proverbs 25:8-9, "Go not forth hastily to strive, lest thou know not what to do in the end thereof, when thy neighbour hath put thee to shame. Debate thy cause with thy neighbour himself; and discover not a secret to another."

I get into trouble when I respond "hastily" to what I hear. I need to slow down and listen to the whole sentence, not just what I want to hear.
